

British Commercial Boatbuilders Association (BCBA)

A Buyer's guide to commercial boatbuilding in the UK for craft up to 50m

British workboat building at its best

The British Commercial Boatbuilders Association (BCBA) represent business that operate in the UK commercial marine industry, those businesses are also members of the British Marine Federation (BMF), which represents the UK leisure marine industry. The BCBA's knowledge and experience in the commercial marine industry assists the BMF in presenting its members interests at the highest level in the UK and overseas.

Membership of the association is available to boat builders and companies who have a close involvement with the commercial marine sector. Membership also offers a commercial industry forum to meet with fellow members and provide all the BMF services and benefits to help members grow and develop their business.

The BCBA, through the BMF, provides members with up to date information on technical, legal and EU/UK legislation. The BCBA also provides assistance with UK and Overseas Boat Shows.

The BCBA is the only known trade association whose sole brief is to represent commercial marine interests covering a wide range of subjects directly relating to the design, construction, safety and operation of workboats. Workboats from UK yards are to be seen in all parts of the world engaged in pilotage, rescue and survival, ferry operations, military and police work.

The object of the guide, which is distributed to Embassies and Industry in the UK and Worldwide, is to provide details of the craft and services that our members offer. Our members will be more than happy to discuss your requirements.
